From your Mayor What Feels Like the End, Is Often the Beginning

Mike Horn

I don't know about you, but today as we return to a more normal time, the world feels different to me.

We are emerging from more than a year of uncertainty. During which we had to change how we lived, how we worked and how we engaged with each other.

It was a time that brought out our best, and sometimes our worst. But, if we've learned one thing over the last year it's how resilient we can be.

Writer C.S. Lewis said, "There are far, far better things ahead than any we leave behind."

I truly believe that now is a time when we can become far better than we have ever been.

Rather than look backward to how things were; we can look forward with vision, hope and optimism of how things can be. A better world, a better community, a greater respect for the environment in which we live and on which we depend.

The rest of this summer and into the fall we will resume our town's entertainment events that are a hallmark of Lewisville. Shallowford Square, Jack Warren Park and the soon to open Mary Alice Warren Community Center will be places where we connect, meet old friends, make new ones and celebrate how fortunate we are.

This is a time, when we can all start over.

We can be kinder to each other and far less angry. We can be more compassionate to those in need of compassion. And we can be more understanding, accepting and respectful of those who may not be like us or may have different points of view. We can learn so much from each other. And our lives will be better.

There is a Chinese proverb that says, "Just when the caterpillar thought the world was over, it became a butterfly."

This is a time when we can all become butterflies. I'm very much looking forward to seeing you again, around our little town.

As always, I welcome your thoughts and comments.

Be Sure to Abide by the NC Move Over Law

The North Carolina Move over Law is set to protect law enforcement officers, fire fighters, EMS and tow truck operators. This law has also been updated to include protection to utility work crews and tow trucks who are working on the side of the road. This law helps protect emergency personnel and work crews from passing traffic.

This law specifically states that motorists must change lanes or slow down when they see an emergency vehicle, state trooper, other law enforcement or utility crews stopped on the shoulder of the road with its lights flashing. Utility vehicles are required to have a flashing amber light. Utility and service vehicles protected in this expanded law include electric, cable, telephone, gas and all state vehicles emitting an amber light. The statute is North Carolina General Statute 20-157.

A violation of the move over law will result in a mandatory fine of $250-plus court costs more than $200. Violating the "Move Over" law, damaging property or causing injury doubles the fine to $500 and is a class one misdemeanor. Moreover, a conviction is considered a moving violation and counts as 3 points on your license and will cause at least a 25 percent insurance surcharge for three years.

SLIPPERY WHEN WET

Nissen House Notes

Introducing the Cabbage Rose Room in the Nissen House!

When paint was stripped from the walls of this room, we discovered that the room apparently had been originally wall papered over bare wood and the first coat of paint was a startling pink that was part of the Victorian palette of colors. Victorian colors were made out of natural pigments ground into white lead and linseed oil. Many of the earth and stone colors were favored in the Early Victorian Period (1840-1870) and included neutral and dark tones, such as grey, brown or fawn. These colors were thought to be more dignified. In the Late Victorian Period (1870-1900), more positive colors came into favor, such as yellow, red, blue and black. Pigments were made from naturally occurring materials, such as moss, alizarin from the roots of the madder plant, malachite, azurite, cinnabar, sand, copper, vermilion, white lead, chrome, zinc oxide (white) and vegetables such as beets and carrots.

A sample of the scant remains of the original wallpaper can be seen on the display shelves on the back wall of this room. The current wallpaper border is a reproduction of a Victorian design, donated by a member of the Lewisville Historical Society. The shelves were inserted into a non-original doorway that had been added and then closed off at an early date. The walnut secretary in the room was purchased from an antiques dealer in Salisbury and is a factory-made piece dating from the mid-to-late 19th century. The framed print on the mantel is from a painting by the French-American painter Paul de Longpre (1855-1911), who emigrated from France and painted in the U.S. toward the end of the 19th century. To the left of the secretary you will see a print of the Laugenour House, home of Lewis Case Laugenour, founder of Lewisville and brother-in-law of George Elias. The print is the work of Lewisville artist Patty Bailey Sheets.

The doorway leading into the Storage Room was also an early non-original addition to the room. The Storage Room was originally part of a travelers' room built on the back of the House. "Travelers' rooms were small, porch-like rooms attached to the outside of houses usually situated along stage coach routes." (Encyclopedia of North Carolina edited by William S. Powell, c. 2006). They were intended for use by travelers in rural areas where there were few taverns or other accommodations. These rooms contained minimal furniture, such as a bed, a chair and a table. The only door faced the outside and there was no door to the inside of the rest of the house. Sometimes the family who lived in the house never had contact with the traveler who used the room overnight. At other times, the traveler might be included at family meals. Travelers' rooms became popular in the Colonial and Victorian times in the south. The Nissen family home was located very close to the Great Wagon Road that ran through the middle of Lewisville and on to the Shallow Ford in the Yadkin River. The Road was the principal frontier migration route from Pennsylvania to Georgia. So with their travelers' room, the Nissen family extended "southern hospitality" to strangers in need.

The Historic Nissen House's Cabbage Rose Room is ideal for small meetings and classes. The Historic Nissen House (ca 1876) is currently not accepting rental applications or group tour requests from the public during the pandemic. However, they are accepting tour requests from those who are planning future rental events. During tours, all pandemic health safety rules are observed. The Historic Nissen House is a nondiscrimination, nonprofit business and is a project of the Lewisville Historical Society. Visit nissenhouse.org for more information.

Lewisville Fire Department Achieves New Fire Service Rating

North Carolina Insurance Commissioner and State Fire Marshal Mike Causey has announced a new fire service rating for the Lewisville Fire Department. The inspection took place in February 2021. This rating inspection, conducted by the Office of State Fire Marshal (OSFM), is required on a regular basis as a part of the North Carolina Response Rating System (NCRRS). Among other things, it looks for proper staffing levels, sufficient equipment, proper maintenance of equipment, communications capabilities and availability of a water source in the event of fire.

The NCRRS rating system ranges from 1 (Highest Rating) to 10 (Lowest Rating – not recognized as a certified fire department by the state), with most rural fire departments falling into the 9s category. Higher ratings indicate that a department is overall better equipped to respond to fires in its district. Higher ratings can also significantly lower homeowner and business insurance rates in the fire district.

The Lewisville Fire Department’s previous rating of Class 4, has improved to an impressive Class 2! Per published data provided by OSFM, Lewisville Fire Department becomes one of 38 Class 2 fire departments in North Carolina and one of 1673 Class 2 departments in the United States. Lewisville becomes the first volunteer fire department in Forsyth County to achieve a Class 2 rating. The new insurance rating takes effect on August 1, 2021.

Commissioner Causey stated, “I’d like to congratulate Chief Needham for the department’s performance and for the hard work of all the department members. The citizens in the Town and district should rest easy knowing they have a fine group of firefighters protecting them and their property in case of an emergency.”

Lewisville Fire Department Chief Darin K. Needham said in a press release, “I could not be more proud of the men and women who make up the Lewisville Fire Department! We remain a volunteer fire department at heart, supplemented by a small number of career staff that ensures efficient and effective response when our volunteers are not available. At the end of the day, we truly are neighbors, helping neighbors. The dedication shown by each member of our department made this remarkable success possible.”

The Lewisville Fire Department was established in 1951, when the Lewisville Civic Club established a formal volunteer force to help protect local residents from the threat of fire. Today, LFD remains poised to respond not only to fire, but also various technical and water rescue events, provide hazardous materials mitigation and offer emergency medical services within their district and adjacent communities.

“I offer my sincere thanks to our partner agencies: Clemmons, Courtney, Forbush, Forsyth County and Vienna Fire Departments. Each of these organizations plays a vital role in the ratings process and every day response to emergencies,” said Chief Needham.
